

CRITICAL DISCOURSE ANALYSIS

Relationship between language and social categories (such as gender, race, nation) will be analyzed. Forms in which language and language use contribute to the construction of different ideologies and identities in a given socio-historical context will be presented and discussed. The analysis is based on the post-structuralist analysis of language (discourse). It is an interdisciplinary approach, because the theoretical frame of analysis and the methodological apparatus are formed through communication with other, similar disciplines (sociolinguistics, cultural studies, anthropological linguistics etc.). The course is in Serbian or English/ Spanish.